Turn Your Classroom Into a Community of Powerful Learners

Today's students are different from the students of past generations. These children spend their formative years immersed in the intense stimulation of the digital age and subsequently become hard wired for different patterns of learning. As a result, they have shorter attention spans and greater expectations of learning experientially. In this practical, dynamic workshop – co-facilitated by authors Dr. Rich Allen and Cindy Rickert – you'll hear about proven new strategies to engage, empower and excite students. Learn simple ways to transform 'dull' academic content into relevant and compelling learning experiences. Discover the five founding principles of dynamic teaching. Find out how to set up rituals that allow you to control the ebb and flow of student engagement. Combining all these ideas together will turn your classroom into a community of excited learners!
